SO, MOON, DON'T TELL. New York Truth

O Moon! did you see,
O Moon! did you see,
My lover and me
In the valley beneath the sycamore tree?
Whitiver befall
'Two h Moon! don't sell;
'Twas nothing amiss, you know very well.

O Moon! you know, You left the sky and descended below Of a summer night,
By your own sweet light;
You met your Endymion on Patmos' height—

And there, O Moon!
You gave him a boon
You wouldn't. I'm sure, have granted at noon.
'Twas nothing amiss,
Being only the bilss'
Of giving and taking an innocent kiss!

Some churlish lout
Who was spying about,
Went off and blabbed, and so it got out;
But for all the gold
The sea could hold,
O Moon! I wouldn't have gone and told!

So Moon! don't tell
Whatever befell
My lover and me in the leafy dell.
He is houest and true,
And remember, too,
Ile only behaved like your lover and you!

A CHINESE EXECUTION.

Graphic Description of the Recent Be heading of the Nineteen Pirates.

Hong Kong Daily Press. . A keen interest, of course, was be trayed as each succeeding motions leading up to the grand finale took place, and the appearance of the executioner's subordinate with three swords brought the interest to fever heat. Immediately afterward four boats containing the prisoners, who were chained hand and leet, were run up on the beech and the prisoners disembarked. Of these misorable wretches there were nineteen, thirteen of whom were concerned in the Namoa piracy, the remainder being concerned in offenses committed on Chinese territory. A short description of those connected with the piracy may be of interest. One, Chow A-on, furnished funds to the other pirates and was on board the Namoa when the attack was made. Chum Kang-you, Li Ping, Loo Yuen, Low Iomyuk, Leung A-sz, and Tsang A Ying took part in the attack. Chun Fuk-yin is the man who shot a foreigner (supposed to be the captain). Lung Chuen-shing, Leung Foon-yung, Fau Koon-tai, Leung the interest to fever heat. Immediately to be the captain). Lung Chuen-shing, Leung Foon-yung, Fau Koon-tai, Leung Sam-tai, Fok Moon-kwong, and Lum Mah-soon were on board the junks re-

Mah-soon were on board the junks receiving the booty from the steamer. Low Awai also furnished funds to the pirates, though he was not on board the Namoa at the time of the commission of the pirate; but he confessed he was one of the pirates who attacked the Greyhound. While on this point it should be recorded that great praise is due to Admiral Fong and his officers for the zeal they have displayed in hunting down all those connected with this piracy. The prisoners having been landed were placed in line on their knees a few feet apart. Whether, as is generally understood, these prisoners were drugged is not certain, Whether as is generally understood, these prisoners were drugged is not certain, but the majority seemed to evince but little interest in what was going on. One certainly had the appearance of being drugged, or else was paralyzed with fear. He was carried ashore in a basket, and on being placed in line on the beach, fell forward, burying his face in the sand. The victims having been arranged amidst much beating of drums, slowly from the far end of the line appeared the executioner, preceded by two trumpeters. This officer with an attendant walkedsolwy down the line and took up a position at the extreme right. Then the business commenced. Having selected a sword, his attendant takes up a position behind the first prisoner. The victim's head is thrust forward to make the better mark for the executioner, who, spiring his sword with head book bands.

forward to make the better mark for the executioner, who, spizing his sword with both hands, "strikes with tremendous force on the outstretched neck. A scarcely perceptible yet a suggestively sickening sound as the sword cleaves the neck, and the next moment a lead rolling in the sand, jets of blood spouting in the air and the attendant tumbles the body forward—a momentary quiverling of the limbs, the spout of blood stops, the body stiffens—finis. Before this has scarcely taken place the executioner and his attendant are making the preliminary arrangeplace the executioner and his attendant are making the preliminary arrangements with the next man. The same outstretched neck, the same ominous sound, and again another head and body roll over. The executioner is evidently master of the trade. From one to another he goes deliberately and quickly down the line, never faltering, and at each stroke a head severed cleanly and instantaneously from the cleanly and instantaneously from and at each stroke a head severed cleanly and instantaneously from the body. Stay! at the eighteenth man he is at fault. Whether it is that his terrible sword has become blunted, the head is not taken clean off, but rolls over the shoulder, still connected by a few sinews, while the blood spurts from the neek covering the features which still move—a sickening sight. The executioner, however, does not appear to be put out. A glance at the bungled job, a word to his attendant, another sword is handed to him, another cutmade, and the work finished. The last head falls as smartly as the previous ones. Then the Mandarin and officials retire, the soldiers follow, and the crowd spreads round the corpses strewn along the beach. The more curious examined the the labels attached to the bodies, upon which are inscribed the names and offences of the prisoners. With the exception of these the general crowd move toward the Yamen, from whence the officials are departing. The executioner rushing through the crowd makes his way to the chair of the Mandarin, drops on his knee and howls out something, the Mandarin nods and is borne away. The various officers hurry on board the gunboats and immediately set off for

Origin of Some Words.

"Oh, dear!" is equivalent to "O dio mio,"
"Thimble mio," "O my God."
"Thimble," was originally "thumb bell," the thimble formerly having been worn on the thumb.
"Slav" is not the "slave" of the old etymologists, but, in reality, a person etymologists, but, in reality, a person of noble lineage.

"Dandalion" is dent de leon, "the lion's tooth," and "vinegar" was once vin aigre (sour wine.)
"Madame" is "my lady" and "sir" has been extracted from the Latin "senior" through the French.
"Biscuit" keeps alive the Latin phrase, bis coctus "twice cooked," and a "verdict" is simply a vere dictum (true saving.)

saying.)
An "earl" was an "elder" in primitive society, while "pope" is the same as "papa," and "czar" and "kaiser" are "papa," and "czar" and "kaiser" are both Cresars. A "villain," before the stigms of dis

A "villain," before the stigma of disgrace was attached to him, was simply a labore on the "villa" of a Roman country gentleman.

"Rotten Row," the famous London street, gained its name by being called "la route du roi; in English, "the King's passage way."

"Lord" is the old Anglo-Saxon "halford" (loaf distributer). The Latin term for "Lord" is Dominue, which has given us "dominie," the old term for preacher. "Hussy" once ment a respectable house-wife; a "knave" was simply a boy. "Jimminy" is a reminiscence of the classical adjuration, "O gemini," used by the Romans when they called upon the twins, Castor and Pollux, to help them.

Perpendiculars.

Hoper's Baun.

A Cambridge student once told me that the parties which the dons gave the under-graduates were called "Perpendiculars" by the latter, because the young men never dared to sit down, for fear of offending their High Mightinesses the dons, nor did they variure to young men never dared to sit down, for fear of offending their High Mightinesses the dons, nor did they venture to speak unless spoken to. I have never visited Cambridge, but not long ago I was at a Perpendicular in New York, and felt with terror that this was the coming vogue. If all we go to another's house for is to eat and drink; might not the would-be host send his would-be guests orders on Delmonico, and save himself the trouble of turning his home into a restaurant? If the desire to see flnery is what influences us, had we not better go the opening of one of the court dress-makers and milliners who are crowding to our shores? But if the object is an hours' pleasant intercourse with other human beings, then, in the name of commonsense, let us talk to one another. The conversation at teas and parties has never been noted for brilliancy, but anything is better than suspicious or supercilious silence. By it we reflect on the entertainer's judgment in the choice of friends, and never should we cast such a doubt on his selection of ourselves. should we cast such a doubt on his se-lection of ourselves.

"Ho," said a well known statesman,
"I shall never believe that woman has the proper judgment and sense to cast a ballot, or interfere in politics, while she is so weak-minded as to passively suffer, year after year, from diseases peculiar to females, when every newspaper she picks up, tells of the merits of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.
Not to take advantage of this remedy is certainly an indication of mental weakness!"

There is a wholesome kernel of trith inside the rough shell of this ungallant speech. The "Favorite Prescription" is invaluable in all uterine troubles, ininvaluation in all uterine troubles, in-flammations, ulcerations, displacements, nervous disorders, prostration, exhaus-tion, or hysteria. For run-down, worn-out women, no more strengthening tonic or negvine is known.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month-by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeles victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from first dose. She continued its use, and after taking ten bottles its use, and after taking ten bottles found herself sound and well, now does her own housework and is as well as she ever was. No Name.

My little boy, five years old, was stacked with a disease for which the doctors had no name. The nalls came off to the middle joint. For three years, under various kinds of treatment from many physicians, he suf-fered terribly and got no better. I began the use of Swift's Specific a short time ago, and he is getting well.
